TANJA SMIT

See the text, read the image

My work is a record of attempts to read the world in all its absurdity. To this end, I use both language and image in ever new ways, especially through translations and transformations. My drawings, paintings and text works – drawn interventions in newspapers, magazines and books are created in open work processes in which new and self-imposed rules mix with anarchy. New meanings are revealed and constructed on familiar surfaces. Some of the works undergo further translation into music, performance or video. Keywords: transformation, meaning processes, drawing, painting, photography, video, performance, music, paper, ink, egg tempera, watercolor, language, text, literature, writing, book, layers, structures, patterns; rhythm, process, collaboration, content, play
