MARIKA ASATIANI

subtle physical relationship between images and a viewer in the given space

In my recent and mainly photographic practice, I have been interested in approaching places as process, rather than something static and physical; exploring not only one position, one perspective, a fixed center but a passage, always in between; in between subjective and 'objective' modes of perception, where there is no one locality but relationship, which needs to be endlessly articulated. I have been trying to point at subtle human experiences, and ask the following –what is the meaning of words like 'space' and 'place'? What is space? Do you ever experience it? What is the relationship between these two. In our everyday lives we are cluttered with endless images, material objects, stories, etc., I became curious to explore not only the images/places as such, but hint at space that makes these places possible, something that is ever elusive and hard to pin down, since it is immaterial, intangible. Space along with everything else cannot be perceived or known without the perceiver; as a result, I have been steered in the direction of focusing on the perceiver, rather than what is perceived. In my experience, it is easiest (or even only possible) to feel the space or spaciousness through one's body, rather than mind (which is prone to fixing, differentiating, and labelling). Therefore, through different projects and visual content, I am frequently interested in creating works that make us reflexive of our own physical being in here and now, images, which are not so much a window into something or someplace else but bring your attention back to yourself. One becomes the subject of his/her experience as one is looking at the work. Ideally, it should be a direct and intimate experience, unmediated by conceptual knowledge, more sensed than rationally understood.

According to the curator Filippo Maggia, "images on display create an exciting sequence of faces and traditions, an interactive mosaic, which is indeed the real and ultimate picture of our times".

- 2014 Just Add Water CCA Andtrax Andtrax, Spain JUST ADD WATER! presents a wide range of carefully selected works by approximately 20 international artists that have all used the subject of water in their own, characteristic and fascinating way. The exhibition explores the representation of water as a theme in a wide array of media including painting, video, drawing, photography and sculpture. Water is the precursor for all life and therefore it has been, is and always will be a motif of inspiration, awe, joy and fear. By highlighting how water can be used realistically, symbolically and metaphorically, the exhibition conveys and interprets the representation of water in inspiring and challenging ways. A flowing stream, a turbulent ocean or a calm lake can help us determine the overall mood of the artwork. The presence of water often has a deeper symbolic meaning, creating a feeling of pureness or life.
